

The balloons don't wait for the unprepared.

Cappadocia is one of the most breathtaking places on Earth — a moonscape of fairy chimneys, cave churches, and a sky that fills with a hundred hot-air balloons at dawn. But it quietly punishes travelers who improvise.

Written by a hotel owner who lives here, this guide gives you:

- When to go — month by month, built around your odds of flying
- The hot-air balloon, demystified — pricing, safety, the rule that gets you airborne
- Where to stay, the best valleys, and 1–4 day itineraries
- Food, photography, and how to avoid the common scams

Come prepared. Travel kindly. Look up often.
